”, to the phrase “beguiled by my own story” I would say that God has many stories to tell, but I believe that he is the author of them all. So, that “story” that God has been “beguiling” us with, and so believing, is not a lie. It’s not a story where I get my feelings hurt if I do not believe it. It’s the story that God has been able to create. When you are “beguiled” by God’s own story, you will begin to “beguile” your children by the faith of your lives. Let me finish this post by quoting out of a guy’s book from a ministry that I highly recommend called Dave Ramsey’s “Total Money Makeover”. It is a guy’s book and I think the guy knows a thing or two about finances. The titles of the book are some of the titles that are found throughout the book: “A Debt-free Life” “Real World Finances” “Heaven Is Not Enough” These titles hint at the thought patterns within the book that I believe is something that young couples should read prior to marriage. I would recommend that you read a chapter or two each a week, and then as you start to discern how God would like you to interact with money, review that chapter or two. I think that you would be amazed at the thoughts that have been planted within your family by the love that God has shown you in the area of money. For more in-depth financial discussions, I would recommend that you check out their book because they will be able to explain these topics much better than I can. I am a Christian mother who tries to teach my children the Bible, and give them a life of faith. I am not perfect, but I strive for perfection, and I pray that God allows me to be a good mom, friend and provider. In situ quantitative polymerase chain reaction (PCR) of solid biological samples: simultaneous amplification and detection of multiple targets. The development of in situ quantitative polymerase chain reaction (PCR) is described. In this method, multiplex amplification of PCR target sequences is achieved simultaneously, and the amplicon products are detected in the same sample using the Biodyne sealable detection module.

Q: Many computers are responding to URL query strings using a shell script? I have a website that is making POST requests to itself and I'm trying to figure out why. I installed ZAP and noticed that my website is requesting an URL query string and ZAP recognizes that the URL is a normal shell script and the URL is pointing to a folder on my computer. I checked my web server logs and the server is responding with a log in the URL and a shell script called index.sh. I can view the script and it looks like this: `#!/bin/bash webApp() { curl -X GET --header "Pragma: no-cache" \ -H "Accept-Encoding: gzip, deflate" \ -H "Connection: keep-alive" \ -H "User-Agent: Mozilla/5.0 (Windows NT 6.3; WOW64) AppleWebKit/537.36 (KHTML, like Gecko) Chrome/42.0.2311.135 Safari/537.36" \ -H "Host: localhost:8080" \ -H "Referer: localhost:8080/index.sh?unid=${unid}&cred=$(python2credentials.py)" \ } webApp` This is the URL I'm passing to ZAP (the URL that the log in is redirected to). The argument that the unid variable has is because I'm running the script from another directory and the credentials are stored in a file. The credentials are stored in a file for security and I simply needed a way to run the script in my browser. I can run the script on its own and it works as expected. If I look in my web server logs, it's loading the index.sh file and executing it instead of the redirecting the original URL. I have Apache2 and my
