HyperMotion provides a dynamic and realistic match simulation using more than 125,000 (real-life) user-controlled data points. A new translation system for the AI's tackling tackles and physical contact has been developed for HyperMotion. The improved Player Awareness in FIFA 22 was created with the help of two drivers, 38 industry experts and two sets of first-person drills. Based on current player awareness trends, the team created an AI that makes its line-of-sight algorithms more intelligent. "FIFA 22 is the biggest update to the franchise in many years. To get players excited about playing FIFA again, we've invested a lot in the game's core gameplay - player handling and ball control, both in open play and in goalkeeping. The new engine has allowed us to develop a more real-time and dynamic game experience. We've also added 'HyperMotion' to the game, a brand-new, player-driven game engine technology that leverages motion capture data from real-life athletes. The new engine has seen incredible success in the real-time strategy space - we've been able to take real-world player movements and re-architect them for FIFA gameplay. It's given us the tools to develop an incredibly detailed and immersive experience. And players can feel the difference when they play. FIFA 22 has a more reactive and more connected experience. The 2014 World Cup is a real-time reflection of the world's football culture and fans' passion - now we want to replicate that in FIFA. The new engine is pushing the boundaries of what a game can be, and we think FIFA will be a very different experience for next year's World Cup." Ian Darke, Fifa Executive Producer "We're not just redesigning features - we're using a brand new engine that allows our game to tell a new story. The addition of 'HyperMotion' technology has allowed us to unlock the potential of player movements and to make artificial intelligence more realistic and dynamic. It has reinvigorated the game and has given our players and fans a more connected and reactive experience." Andy Cosslett, Head of Studio "The new engine delivers incredible responsiveness. It means our players are more reactive to the ball and you can tell when they try

Customer Ratings by gwsmith What can I say I love this game its amazing a fantastic career mode buy it you wont regret it Fantastic by JLBass This game is fantastic for creating a complete player. You can create players with a future, or with real world statistics; but it can be even more fun to combine the two. In terms of players, the game has virtually no flaws. Take Aurelio, Messi, Ronaldo and Zidane; ALL great players. It has a great engine. In terms of the licenses, it is understandable that some are missing, but you can easily buy them for the franchise mode. The only flaw I found was the lack of memories in first person. I miss the classic 'tackle, and burst through' memories that most games in the genre had. But it was a small flaw that could be easily fixed. I just hope that EA will fix the memory glitch. Overall, this is a great game. a similar sort of mechanical. There are moderate-to-vigorous activities but nothing that's going to destroy you like the car rides I find go straight to my heart. Wilderness, hiking, and camping can help me begin to imagine myself in a much more simple life. I know the majority of would have to live this kind of life in a place on this planet where the amenities aren't there. Maybe my government won't recognize me as an American citizen, but you can count on one thing about me, I'll always be an American. I am an American and I find the spirit of America all over the world.
